

Fall in Love with Your Home All Over Again

By Erica Starich

Fall is a season of change. The weather will turn cooler and chances are you will spend more time indoors. It is even time to start preparing for the upcoming holidays with the gathering of friends and family in your home. If you don't find your home to be the best it can be, it may be the perfect time to consider a change with an interior redesign.

Interior redesign is the affordable alternative to interior design. Working with what you already have, a redesign transforms your home using your existing furnishings, artwork and accessories. If you've lived in your home for quite some time, you may not even notice that you've been continually adding items that you've either received as gifts or purchased and the space may now be cluttered and needs an update from a professional. It can even benefit you if you've just moved into a new home, as you may be unsure how to incorporate your existing furnishings into a new space and would like help setting up the space so it feels like home.

The best part about a redesign is that there is no need to buy anything new and it does not matter if your furnishings are old or new, all one style or an eclectic mix. A redesigned room will always reflect your personality, history and interests in the very best setting. The space is more functional and inviting, and subsequently used more. A redesigned room is warm, inviting and comfortable – you can feel the difference. Consider a redesign so you can fall in love with your home all over again!
